Customer information

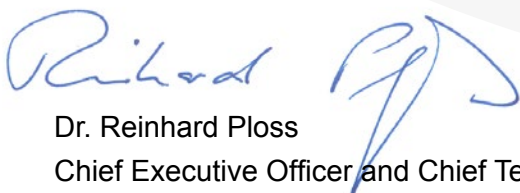

Dear valued customer,

Thank you for choosing our products. They come with all the know-how and passion that our engineers have put into it. As you probably already know, Cypress is now Infineon. This is a major step for our company, and also provides advantages for our customers and partners. You will benefit from the industry's most comprehensive portfolio for linking the real and the digital world – comprising an unparalleled range of hardware, software and security solutions for the connected age.

We are engineers ourselves. Therefore, we understand the importance of reliability and remain fully committed to honoring existing customer and distributor relationships. Our deepest belief is that the combination of the highly complementary product ranges from Infineon Technologies and legacy Cypress enables us providing you advanced solutions for high-growth applications.

We are committed to honoring the product portfolio of legacy Cypress and are pleased to provide you a broad range of products for your projects. As business continuity is of utmost importance for us, we strive for keeping you as unimpaired of the integration as possible, for example by supporting existing part numbers. Please rest assured, that we will inform you in a timely manner about any changes that may occur during the integration process. I thank you very much for your trusting support.

Yours sincerely,

Dr. Reinhard Ploss
